Pumpkin Carving

Making Jack O'Lanterns is an American tradition that has its roots in Ireland. During Halloween, Americans carve pumpkins, light them up, and display them around their house. Jack O'Lanterns represent spirits or supernatural beings and are believed to eliminate evil spirits.

The dorm students carved their own spooky faces out of the pumpkins as a group. Through this activity, the students learned the importance of teamwork and got closer to each other. The dorm supervisors ranked the top three pumpkins and gave points accordingly. This was an excellent opportunity for the students to experience the American culture and have fun with their friends.

College Tour: MIT

The first university the dorm students visited was the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (commonly known as MIT), one of the best universities in the nation coming in at #2. MIT is known for its STEM program, featuring engineering, physical sciences, mathematics, and computer science majors. The students got to see the Welcome Center and walked along the Charles River. The whole Charles River was jam-packed and filled with college students supporting their peers!

College Tour: Northeastern University

Northeastern University is one of the top private research universities in America. Northeastern's main campus is in Boston, and its seven satellite campuses are located all over the country and even in Canada. With an acceptance rate of 20 percent, admissions at Northeastern are highly selective.

The students saw the historic Ell Hall and the famous Robert J. Shillman Hall. It was an excellent opportunity for the students to get a taste of student life at Northeastern.

College Tour: Harvard University

Harvard University is an Ivy League institution with world-class staff, innovative research possibilities, and a dedication to a varied environment of gifted students. Harvard is more than just a place to receive an education; students come here to undergo transformation.

The dorm students toured around the campus and enjoyed the beautiful scenery of the city.
